How many people go missing every year in the United States?

Many are individuals that may not realize they are being subjected to a systemic scheme (well documented) known as gangstalking.

According to the National Missing and Unidentified Persons (NamUS) database, which is funded by the U.S. Department of Justice, more than 600,000 people go missing annually. Approximately 4,400 unidentified bodies are recovered each year.

What is the leading cause of death by firearm in the United States?

You don't think these have direct relevance?

<https://www.pewresearch.org/short-reads/2023/04/26/what-the-data-says-about-gun-deaths-in-the-u-s/>

What share of U.S. gun deaths are murders and what share are suicides?

Though they tend to get less public attention than gun-related murders, suicides have long accounted for the majority of U.S. gun deaths. In 2021, 54% of all gun-related deaths in the U.S. were suicides (26,328), while 43% were murders (20,958), according to the CDC. The remaining gun deaths that year were accidental (549), involved law enforcement (537) or had undetermined circumstances (458).

Q:

What is causing mass gun shooting?

A:

Answer is gangstalking or the allowance to give no answer to the organized irresponsible means this message will generate no response. CC: Linkin Post

Don't you think it is time we stop existing rule 230 and shove this into a office of justice programs on the development of how to stop gangstalking and mass gun shootings?

Wicked problems are problems with many interdependent factors making them seem impossible to solve. Wicked problem

Article

In planning and policy, a wicked problem is a problem that is difficult or impossible to solve because of incomplete, contradictory, and changing requirements that are often difficult to recognize. It refers to an idea or problem that cannot be fixed, where there is no single solution to the problem; and "wicked" denotes resistance to resolution, rather than evil.^[1] Another definition is "a problem whose social complexity means that it has no determinable stopping point".^[2] Moreover, because of complex interdependencies, the effort to solve one aspect of a wicked problem may reveal or create other problems. Due to their complexity, wicked problems are often characterized by organized irresponsibility.

You are the key as Chief Science Advisor which goes to research and investigate the underpinnings of a Wicked Problem.

Truth is truth.

A development of law enforcement standards of tool craft outputs repeats in pattern recognition cycles.

Random occurrence is not likely the source of the chaos and harassment targeted individuals of gangstalking receive on a daily basis

So it's eventual termination

When will the United States Department of Justice take a standing position to first most properly define gangstalking and second to understand it's complexity and it's prowess.

Finally to find light at the end of the tunnel vision blindness that prosecutes gangstalking to its internal and external eventual termination.

When can this occur?

You: Dear DHS: By contacting you in this manner, I am most likely putting myself in greater danger being a targeted individual of gangstalking. Let us not mince words. The research found at the @Nstional Institute of Health on the subject of gangstalking demonstrates that gangstalking is real and not mass paranoia. I have contacted the United States Justice Office of Justice programs via email but no one responds. This problem unaddressed is causing mass gun shooters as people who are targeted individuals lose their trust in society to get out of a trap (or virtual prison) walls that has no escape from the "Informational quarantine" that this government has erected such illegal barriers to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Stop organized stalking aka gangstalking by at least on a national scope focus acknowledge gangstalking as a crime and seriously.as it affects our society a matter of national security. It would go a long way just to publicly acknowledge the problem of gangstalking on an law enforcement level downward to all of our nation. The shortest case was described as having begun "in the last few months" and the longest as continuing for "more than 22 years" --- There are two more nih papers determining that gangstalking is real and not a mass delusion or mass paranoia. Author information Article notes Copyright and License information PMC Disclaimer Abstract Background Gangstalking is a novel persecutory belief system whereby those affected believe they are being followed, stalked, and harassed by a large number of people, often numbering in the thousands. The harassment is experienced as an accretion of innumerable individually benign acts such as people clearing their throat, muttering under their breath, or giving dirty looks as they pass on the street. Individuals affected by this belief system congregate in online fora to seek support, share experiences, and interact with other like-minded individuals. Such people identify themselves as targeted individuals.. Results The gangstalking forum served as a site of discursive contest between 2 opposing worldviews. One is that gangstalking is a widespread, insidious, and centrally coordinated system of persecution employing community members, figures of authority, and state actors. This was the dominant discourse in the study corpus. The opposing view is a medicalized discourse supporting gangstalking as a form of mental disorder. Contributors used linguistic practices such as presupposition, nominalization, and the use of specialized jargon to construct gangstalking as real and external to the individual affected. Although contributors generally rejected the notion that they were affected by mental disorder, in some instances, they did label others in the forum as impacted/affected by mental illness if their accounts if their accounts were deemed to be too extreme or bizarre. Those affected demonstrated a concern with accumulating evidence to prove their position to incredulous others. Conclusions The study found that contributors to the study corpus accomplished a number of tasks. They used linguistic practices to co-construct an internally coherent and systematized persecutory belief system. They advanced a position that gangstalking is real and contested the medicalizing discourse that gangstalking is a form of mental disorder. They supported one another by sharing similar experiences and providing encouragement and advice. Finally, they commiserated over the challenges of proving the existence of gangstalking.
